

Time and Attendance by Resource Systems Saves Money and Time for Five Facility Corporation

The Rocky Mountain Care Corporation is a group of five long-term care facilities located around Salt Lake City, Utah. All five facilities recently started using the new Time and Attendance service by Resource Systems.

Johnathan Bangerter, Administrator, reported that their old system was barely better than manual punch clocks. "All time sheets had to be printed and then entered manually into the payroll system," he said. "All employees had to ask the office to know what their hours were. Also, all shift differentials had to be calculated manually." They were already looking for a new system when Resource Systems announced the Time and Attendance service.

The Time and Attendance service has helped in several ways at Rocky Mountain Care. "Employees can check their hours directly without asking other employees," said Johnathan. "We no longer need to manually enter payroll and this has saved the company a whole FTE with five facilities." At the end of each pay period, Rocky Mountain exports the hours out and imports them directly into their payroll system.

When asked about his favorite features, he responded, "Plain and simple it's the ease of use and the fact that we didn't need to invest any more money in hardware since we were already using CareTracker."

In addition, because every employee now regularly uses a kiosk, Rocky Mountain can send messages to all staff, and the entire corporation.

The service also includes a powerful and flexible pay management engine that calculates employees' hours and sorts into pay types like overtime, and shift differentials based on Rocky Mountain's unique rules.

As part of the implementation, HR and Pay Roll personnel worked closely with a Resource Systems implementation consultant that helped configure the pay management engine for them.

Time and Attendance by Resource Systems includes many benefits designed to help long-term care facilities and providers for the developmentally disabled. More information can be found at: www.seecaretracker.com.

Time & Attendance
by Resource Systems

Resource Systems
New Concord, OH
800-338-3681
www.resourcesystems.net